CHAPTER I

STATEMENT OF THE PROBLEM

The study of history is the study of men. If history cannot be written in terms of great men alone, neither can history be complete or intelligible without attention to them. Furthermore, the version of history which we present in our classrooms needs the vitality that biography can bring. The panorama of civilization emerges through the lives of outstanding people. Spirited biographies make history and society live since events and actions hinge upon individuals. May Lamberton Becker succintly states: "History is a network of biographies for it is made by the lives of men."[1]

In an attempt to discover which persons are mentioned in recent junior high school American history textbooks, the following five books, published between 1945 and 1947, were examined:

1. Casner, Mabel; Gabriel, Ralph, The Story of American Democracy. New York: Harcourt, Brace & Co., 1945.

2. Celeste, Sister, The Origin and Growth of Our Republic. New York: MacMillan Company, 1947.

3. McGuire, Edna; Portwood, Thomas, The Rise of Our Free Nation. New York: MacMillan Company, 1946.

4. Faulkner, Harold; Kepner, Tyler; Pitkin, Victor, U.S.A. New York: Harper Brothers, 1945.

---

[1] M. L. Becker, Adventures In Reading, Stokes, New York, 1937, p. 98.

5. Wilson, Howard; Lamb, Wallace, American History. New York: American Book Company, 1947.

These books were examined for:

1. The number of persons mentioned in each and the total number in the five books.

2. The number of times each person is mentioned in each book.

3. The number of persons common to five books.

4. The classes of persons mentioned and the classes which received most emphasis in the different books.

5. The amount of space in lines devoted to each person. Ten words constituted one line.

CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF PREVIOUS STUDIES

As the schools have increasingly developed wide reading programs in the social studies, it is safe to say that the use of biography has increased on the junior and senior high school level of instruction. In whatever form the school organizes and teaches American history, biography is essential to an understanding of our history. In fact, biography is an inseparable part of all history and today there is a wealth of material on which pupils can draw for understanding, enjoyment, and inspiration.[2]

By encouraging the reading of biography, subjects, movements and events may be better interpreted and understood by students in the school. Gamaliel Bradford says, "And by beginning with the human element, you insensibly open up before your pupil all the wide and varying fields of thought. If he has become interested in the men who are working in these fields, he cannot avoid some measure of interest in the fields themselves."[3]

[3] Gamaliel Bradford, Biography and The Human Heart, Houghton Company, New York, 1932, p. 33.

"The biography of a relatively unknown person inevitably reflects something of the culture in which he lived."[4]

Textbooks cannot be conceived as the sole materials of learning. The fact that all the information pertinent to a given subject cannot be found in a textbook is not a drawback but a desirable feature helping to promote the development of the kinds of study skills which students will use in after life. The textbook has an important function and major role. Its purpose is to help the student to organize and to intellectualize, that is, to make meaningful his experiences.[5]

"There is no other 'Hall of Fame' that can compare with the textbook in national history in keeping alive the memories of those who have gone before."[6]

In 1916, Bagley[7] examined twenty-three textbooks published between 1881 to 1913 and found that in the period of Discovery and Exploration, Columbus, Cartier, and Raleigh were found in all books; William Pitt was mentioned in all the texts during the Colonial War Period; James Otis in the Revolutionary War period; Washington from 1783 to 1812; Madison 1812 to 1816; and Lincoln during the Civil War period.

In a study made by Rosenbloum[8] at the State University of Iowa in 1928, five textbooks were analyzed and the following conclusions made:

1. Eight hundred and twenty three different men were found in the five books, the number in a single book ranging from 360 to 503.

2. Out of the eight hundred and twenty-three different men mentioned, fifty-one were explorers, ten were men of industry, seventy-three were colonizers, one hundred and ninety-one were statesmen, one hundred and twenty-one were military men, thirty-six were naval men, forty-six were educators and religious workers, one hundred and ninety were artists and musicians, and seventy-three were scientists and inventors. There were also sixty-six persons in a miscellaneous group.

3. Only one hundred and thirty-six men out of the eight hundred and fifty-three different men were found common to all of the textbooks.

4. The ten most frequently mentioned persons were:

Rank	Person	Frequency of Mention
1	Washington, George	375
2	Lincoln, Abraham	224
3	Jefferson, Thomas	197
4	Jackson, Andrew	172
5	Grant, Ulysses S.	116
6	Hamilton, Alexander	112
7	Lee, Robert	108
8	Columbus, Christopher	103
9	Wilson, Woodrow	102
10	Roosevelt, Theodore	92

5. The ten persons having the greatest number of events attributed to each were:

Rank	Person	No. of Events	No. of Lines
1	Washington, George	185	4221
2	Jefferson, Thomas	121	2785
3	Lincoln, Abraham	121	2284
4	Jackson, Andrew	73	1892
5	Wilson, Woodrow	69	1651
6	Grant, Ulysses S.	54	1424
7	Hamilton, Alexander	53	1280
8	Franklin, Benjamin	49	1161
9	Columbus, Christopher	48	1098
10	Adams, John	44	1089

6. The events with which the eight hundred and twenty-three men were mentioned were practically the same in each of the five textbooks. The men were chiefly connected with military and political affairs.

Eugene Sloan[9] found that in four senior high school textbooks one thousand two hundred ninety-four persons were mentioned. Of these only one hundred eighty-eight were named in all four textbooks. He also found that statesmen and rulers occupied the predominant position, followed by military men, literary persons, theatre persons, educators, religious leaders, social reformers, explorers and finally scientists. The following table shows the rank of each:

	Type of Activity	Frequency
1.	Statesmen, rulers	420
2.	Military men	143
3.	Literary persons	134
4.	Theatre persons	58
5.	Educators	31
6.	Religious leaders	75
7.	Social reformers	35
8.	Explorers	63
9.	Scientists	85
10.	Miscellaneous	36

[9] Eugene Sloan, "A Study of Emphasis on Personages in American History Textbooks," Unpublished Master's Thesis, George Peabody College for Teachers, 1939.

He found that there were no radio personages mentioned and only 35 persons connected with religion. Fourteen aviators were mentioned as compared to only seven in the railroad field and only two in the field of water transportation. The ten most frequently mentioned persons were:

Rank	Person	Frequency
1	Wilson, Woodrow	137
2	Roosevelt, Theodore	129
3	Jefferson, Thomas	115
4	Lincoln, Abraham	105
5	Roosevelt Franklin D.	104
6	Washington, George	103
7	Jackson, Andrew	98
8	Hamilton, Alexander	67
9	Clay, Henry	66
10	Hoover, Herbert	64

Analysis showed that Jefferson's influence extended from the revolutionary period to Franklin Roosevelt's administration, his theories of democracy being subject to frequent comparisons. Only sixty women were mentioned and of these six were found in all four. One third of the women mentioned were in the literary field, and only in the fields of military affairs, finance, and science were they completely excluded. The following table shows the type of activity engaged in by the women mentioned:

	Type of Activity	Frequency
1.	Literary	22
2.	Reformers	12
3.	Politicians	4
4.	Humanitarians	2
5.	Actress	2
6.	Sovereigns	3
7.	Artist	1
8.	Aviator	1
9.	Athlete	1
10.	Colonizer	1
11.	Educator	1
12.	Envoy	1
13.	Judge	1
14.	Musician	1
15.	Orator	1
16.	Religion	1
17.	Miscellaneous	5

Eighty English personages were mentioned but no Chinese or Japanese. Only nine Negroes were included and of these only Dred Scott was mentioned in all the textbooks. Sloan found from his analysis that large racial minorities are excluded from these textbooks examined.

PROCEDURE

Each of the five books was carefully examined line by line and the findings tabulated. The data was compiled on sheets of paper on which the name of the textbook was listed at the top and the names of the persons were alphabetically listed. On the right hand side of the page the names were classified according to the types of activity in which each engaged.

In the summary findings the classes were grouped under twelve types. Those persons for whom classification was not clear, were placed in the class given to them by the Dictionary of American Biography or Who's Who In America.

The classes were grouped under twelve types as follows:

1. Capitalists, industrialists, financiers, merchants.
2. Statesmen, rulers, government officials, politicians, judges, envoys, presidents.
3. Military men, army, navy.
4. Literary.
5. Entertainment.
6. Artists.
7. Educators.
8. Religion.
9. Scientists and doctors.
10. Social reformers.
11. Explorers and colonizers.
12. Miscellaneous and unclassified.

From the information thus compiled the table of persons, summary, and conclusions all of which follow has been compiled.

CHAPTER III

HISTORICAL CHARACTERS IN FIVE JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL AMERICAN HISTORY TEXTBOOKS

Table I is the combined alphabetical list of all the persons in all the books analyzed in this study.

In this master list each book is identified by a letter. The list follows:

A - Casner, Mabel, and Gabriel, Ralph, The Story of American Democracy. New York: Harcourt Brace & Co., 1945.

B - Celeste, Sister, The Origin and Growth of Our Republic. New York: MacMillan Company, 1947.

C - McGuire, Edna, and Portwood, Thomas, The Rise of Our Free Nation. New York: MacMillan Company, 1946.

D - Faulkner, Harold, Kepner, Tyler, and Pitkin, Victor, U. S. A. New York: Harper Brothers, 1945.

E - Wilson, Howard, and Lamb, Wallace, American History. New York: American Book Company, 1947.

Table II presents a summary of the frequency of names in five, four, three, two, and one books.

Table III reports the summary of types of activities engaged in by all persons in all five books.

Table IV presents the names of people whose complete biographies were recorded in certain books.

Table V enumerates the names of women mentioned in each text book.

Table VI sets forth the frequency of women mentioned in five, four, three, two, and one books.

Table VII presents a summary of the types of woman activity mentioned in all the textbooks used in this study.

Table VIII enumerates the first thirty names of prominence according to superiority of line count in all books used in this study.

Table IX presents a comparison of the thirty most prominent persons in the study with the list of thirty prominent Americans made up by Dumas Malone.

In this study five of the most recent junior high school American history textbooks were analyzed to determine what people are mentioned in them and in what field each was identified. These books were published between 1945 and 1947. Textbook B is one used in Catholic parochial schools and is written by a Catholic Sister.

From Table I, it is found that 1,118 different persons are mentioned in the five textbooks analyzed. Textbook A mentions two hundred ninety-nine persons; B mentions 726 persons; C mentions 255 persons; D mentions 395 persons; and E mentions 413 persons.

The list also shows that of 297 non-Americans mentioned, 98 are English, 57 are French, 45 are Spanish, 18 are Mexican, 16 are German, 8 are Portuguese, 5 are Italian, 5 are Scotchmen, 4 are Russian, 4 are Austrian, 3 are Polish, 3 are Filipinoes, 3 are Dutch, 2 each from Japan, Hungary, and Cuba, and one each from Sweden, Norway, China, Argentina, Iceland, Hawaii, Switzerland, Serbia, Denmark, Czechoslovakia, Brazil and Lithuania. Ten Negroes are also mentioned.

TABLE II

THE NUMBER OF NAMES COMMON TO TEXTBOOKS

Classification	Frequency
Persons included in all five books	93
Persons included in four books or more	180
Persons included in three books or more	265
Persons included in two books or more	441
Persons included in one book only	677
Total persons mentioned in all five books	1118

TABLE III

SUMMARY OF TYPES OF ACTIVITY

Type of Activity	Frequency
1. Statesmen, rulers, government officials	321
2. Military men	138
3. Explorers, colonizers	106
4. Literary	100
5. Scientists, doctors	99
6. Religion	84
7. Capitalists, industrialists, financiers	64
8. Miscellaneous and unclassified	54
9. Artists	49
10. Entertainment	48
11. Social reformers	32
12. Educators	24
Total	1118

Table III shows that statesmen and rulers occupy the predominent position in the five textbooks analyzed.

From the miscellaneous and unclassified list, twenty-four persons are flyers - a large number considering the fact that only 3 railroad men are mentioned. Labor leaders rank next in the miscellaneous list with 9 persons mentioned, followed by architects with eight. The remainder of the list is made up of 3 nurses, 3 Indian chiefs, 2 laborers, and one each of assasin, agent Indian, farmer, slave, and librarian.

Of the 84 religious men mentioned, 73 are mentioned in Book B, 13 in E, 9 in D, 8 in A, and 5 in C. This shows that the book used in Catholic schools presents a more detailed account of religion than those used in non-sectarian schools.

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

The total number of persons mentioned in junior high school American history textbooks is enormous. Moreover authors generally disagree as to the most important people in history.

The most frequently mentioned men were statesmen, presidents, being more frequently mentioned than any others in this group.

The writer feels that presidents have a greater amount of space devoted to them than their importance warrants. It was encouraging to note that military men were mentioned a fewer number of times than previous studies have indicated. If the frequency of mention may be taken as a criterion of importance, authors are considering military men of less importance than formerly was the case. This is a desirable tendency.

History should not be restricted to a study of politics of the federal government. Education for citizenship calls for a broader type of history to be taught to those who will constitute the future members of the electorate, and to those who will be charged with the responsibilities of government. Doctors, scientists, religious leaders, and literary leaders have made great contributions to the progress of civilization. Their merits should be recognized. Pupils in junior high school should be given more opportunities to become acquainted with the lives of these leaders who have contributed to the greatness of our country.

Analysis of the five textbooks has shown such men are not entirely neglected but there is still much to be done. Out of a total of approximately one thousand men, six hundred fifty men other than statesmen and military men were mentioned. Authors have made much progress in broadening history to include all the more important vocations, and the people prominent in them.

The vocations that received prominent space, however, are the more spectacular ones. Aviators were found mentioned twenty four times though the aviation industry is in its infancy. Railroad men were mentioned only three times though the contribution of the railroads far exceed the contributions that have been made to date by the aviation industry. Other vocations were similarly neglected.

The writer feels that the method of selection of persons to be treated in junior high school is still in need of improvement. Far too few women were mentioned considering the great contributions they have made toward the advancement of society. Only five per cent of the total found in the textbooks were women. Surely they have been of greater importance than this figure indicates.

In summary, the persons found to be mentioned in the textbooks analyzed do not seem to constitute a representative sampling of the leaders, past and present, who have been instrumental in the advancement of our country. Greater care is needed in the selection of persons to be studied in the junior high school American history classes in order that the pupils may obtain a true perspective as to the relative value of the contributions made by scientists as opposed to those that have been credited to military men.

Despite this adverse criticism, the distribution of emphasis in junior high school textbooks in American history seems to be approaching an equitableness.
